

Christian Benne attended the Thomasschule (thomasschule.de) and, after National Service, studied literature and various languages as well as philosophy, history and law at the Universities of Leipzig, Edinburgh, and Berlin (Humboldt University and Freie Universität). He holds an M.A. in German and English from the Humboldt Universität and a Dr. phil. (summa cum laude) in Comparative Literature from the Peter Szondi-Institute at the Freie Universität in Berlin. He has worked as a freelance journalist for various newspapers as well as a full time journalist for the BBC. He has taught German and comparative literature, intellectual history and philosophy, cultural history, and language skills. He worked as a lecturer for the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD) at the University of Southern Denmark in Odense and was tenured there as Associate Professor in German literature in 2005. He was appointed head of a research group on literary aesthetics and promoted to full professor of European literature in 2014. He accepted a position as professor of European literature and intellectual history at Copenhagen University in 2015. He has been a visiting scholar or guest professor at Stanford, Chicago University, Heidelberg University and Meiji University (Tokyo) and has presented talks and papers at numerous institutions worldwide. In 2014/15 he was a Fellow at the Morphomata Center for Advanced Studies at the University of Cologne. He has served on numerous committees and academic functions (e.g. as Head of Department 2007-2013). He regularly works as a reviewer and peer reviewer for a number of leading journals and publishing houses as well as for the ERC grant system. He was co-editor of Text & Kontext (2004-2007) and has been a co-editor of Orbis Litterarum since 2007. His research has been awarded various prizes and grants (e.g. DAAD, Fyens Stiftstidende, The Danish Research Council, Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft, The Carlsberg Foundation, The Japan Society for the Promotion of Science). He is currently the deputy director of the Nietzsche Foundation, a board member of the Friedrich Schlegel Gesellschaft and a board member of various journals and prize committees. Between 2007 and 2015 he served as Honorary Consul for the Federal Republic of Germany. He continues to be active in the academic and cultural exchange between Germany, Europe and the Nordic countries in close cooperation with e.g. the DAAD and the German Embassy in Copenhagen.